6. Between 1 and 7 January, the officers' mess at the Sachsenhausen concentration camp was located in the section 2 A of building No 22/44. Officers with dependents were quartered in buildings Nos 18/20, 22/24, and 26/28. Buildings No 11, 13, and 15 also were officers' quarters. Instruction was held in the five class rooms of building No 150. Buildings Nos 145 through 148 were sealed and guarded by a double sentry wearing red-bordered black epaulets with tank insignia. Six or seven unnumbered T-34 tanks, painted green, and several soldiers engaged in maintenance work were seen through the open gate of building No 149. The northern wing of building No 150 was occupied to capacity by soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets with tank insignia. Several Soviet women in civilian clothes were seen at building No 88 on Bernauer Allee. On 3 January, about 400 EM, 40 officers, and 15 women soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets, some with tank insignia, left the billeting area toward the Schuetzenhaus installation. After a prolonged period, source again observed Soviet officers with their women and children in the streets of Oranienburg. On and after 4 January, the driving school unit practiced on the driving grounds behind the cemetery.  Comment. Compared with reports by the same source and other sources in early January 1954, there is no change in the occupation of the above installations. Major Sherback (fnu) is carried as supply officer of the 53rd Mtrcl Bn of the 25th Tank Div. Equipment and insignia confirm the 16th (?) Gds RL and the unidentified signal battalion of the division in the Weisse Stadt Settlement. Some of the vehicle are vaguely indicative of the Hq 25th Tank Div which is believed to be stationed in the Weisse Stadt Settlement. Shuttle traffic rocket launchers 25X1 between the Weisse Stadt Settlement and the Sachsenhausen concentration camp was previously reported by source of paragraph 6. These rocket launchers were either old ones to be turned in or new ones; or rocket launchers belonging to the KVP. For key to the numerical designations of buildings at the Sachsenhausen concentration camp and Weisse Stadt Settlement see sketch attached to respectively.
